

The New England Society of Children's Book Writers & Illustrators presents:

Live Animal Study

A Children's Book Illustrator's Workshop

Sunday, February 26, 2012
1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.

The Edna Lawrence Nature Lab
13 Waterman Street
Providence, RI 02903

Bring your sketchbooks, pencils, and light painting supplies and enjoy a rare opportunity to study a handful of live exotic (and some not-so-exotic) animals up close and personal!

RISPCA Humane Educator Laurelin Sitterly will present on each creature's basic anatomy, movement, and habits that will be sure to inspire you and provide a wealth of knowledge for your animal-themed book projects. Taxidermy and skeletal models will also be available to examine, courtesy of RISD's Edna Lawrence Nature Lab.

This is an event to gather inspiration from the animal world, practice your craft amidst an active environment, meet your fellow SCBWI illustrators, and benefit from a critique of your day's efforts by your peers.

Sponsored by:

Illustrations by Gaia Cornwall

This program is FREE but donations of pet food, supplies, or checks to the RISPCA are strongly suggested. Registration is limited to 25 participants and you must RSVP by February 17, 2012. To register, please complete the following form:

Name: _____
Address: _____
City, State, Zip: _____
Phone: _____
E-mail: _____

I am a (check all that apply):

- Writer
- Illustrator
- SCBWI Member
- Non-member

Please send your completed form as an e-mail attachment to Christina Rodriguez, Workshop Coordinator: mail@christinarodriguez.com. E-mail confirmation will be sent to all registrants. Please bring your donations with you to the event.

